PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

December 9, 1971

Dear Members:

As the year 1971 becomes history and 1972 dawns, let us take inventory of our goals we set for 1971 to see how many of them have been reached.

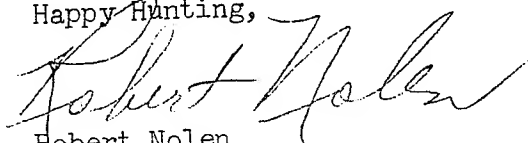

Our society has had a very good year. Our membership has increased considerably. Some very helpful film has been added to the film library and several good books have been donated to our reading materials.

We have had several outstanding speakers on our programs and we hope to have even more in our 1972 programs.

We are looking forward to our special Sesquicentennial edition of "Family Findings". May I take this opportunity to say thanks to Mary Ann Mitchell and her committee for a job well done on our quarterlies.

I want to thank each of you for your suggestions and help in making our society a success in 1971 and looking for bigger and better things in 1972.

Happy Hunting,

Robert Nolen
President

HELP! FOR THE TENNESSEE RESEARCHER

The following article was compiled and submitted to FAMILY FINDINGS by Mrs. Dollye McAlister Elliott, 8323 Sunbury Drive, St. Louis, Missouri 63136. Mrs. Elliott (and your Editor) feels that the problem in genealogical research is not actually a lack of information but a lack of access to information, and hopes that her article (which will be continued in subsequent issues) - will be of help to members of this Society.

Tenneseans are indeed fortunate in having a reservoir of genealogical material available in the Tennessee State Library and Archives, Nashville, and a gracious and helpful staff to rely on. Such graciousness among State Library staffs is not common, as anyone accustomed to corresponding with many State Libraries can confirm. But - "There isn't any knowledge in a book upon the shelf", so how does one go about obtaining information from the Tennessee State Library and Archives, Capitol Hill, Nashville? The following will give you some sources available, both at home and in Nashville, and the services (and graciousness!) are not restricted to Tennessee resident.

THE BUILDING

The Library is located just behind the Capitol Building in Nashville and the main entrance leads into the center of Memorial Hall, which contains the card catalog. To the left is the Reading and Reference Room, containing red leather chairs which are reproductions of those in Independence Hall in Philadelphia. Ranged about the walls of this room are numerous volumes of printed family genealogies, placed on shelves in alphabetical order. These volumes may be selected by the visitor, herself, and used at one of the tables here in the Reference Room. The volumes are not allowed off the premises, however. There are also microfilm readers in this room. If you wish, the staff will make Xerox copies of data for you at a cost of 15¢ a page.

The Division of Archives and Manuscripts, with its Land Office and Search Room, occupies the ground floor below. Receiving and Preparation areas and the Office of the Civil War Centennial Commission are also located on this floor.

On the second floor are the administrative offices, the Public Libraries Division, the Restoration and Reproduction Laboratory, offices of the Tennessee Historical Commission and State Historian, an auditorium and a conference room.

The rear portion of the building is strictly utilitarian, consisting of eight stack levels which will accommodate books and records to the equivalent of 2,000,000 volumes. Not open to the Public.

STATE LIBRARY DIVISION

The Library is the official depository for Tennessee's printed documents and also contains complete files of many Federal series and a large collection of documents from almost every state in the Union. What interests the genealogist, primarily, is that the Library collects and preserves all books, papers, and ephemeral material published in Tennessee by and about Tennesseans; thus, a great many family genealogies, regimental histories, county histories, and transcriptions of Tennessee county records have been specially indexed to permit ready access to available information on Tennessee families. Xerox copies of not-too-lengthy material may be had from the Library at 15¢ per page. Librarians do not do lengthy research, but will check records on request.

HELP! FOR THE TENNESSEE RESEARCHER (Cont'd.)

Microfilm copies of unpublished U. S. Census population schedules, 1800-1870, for 20 states, including Tennessee, and the microfilmed marriage records of Virginia and North Carolina are available and useful to the family researcher.

The Library collection is designed primarily for research and reference use, chiefly by genealogists, scholars, lawyers, newspaper writers, authors, and the like. Rare material is often available on microfilm or can be photoduplicated at cost, and occasionally duplicate copies of some books can be supplied on inter-library loan. This last service will be discussed in greater detail below, as it makes accessible to us at our homes valuable sources of information.

DIVISION OF ARCHIVES AND MANUSCRIPTS

The Division of Archives and Manuscripts is the official repository for all records created by the several departments and agencies of the state government. An extensive collection of war records is maintained. Among these are the service records of Tennessee's Confederate soldiers and a listing of the state's Union soldiers. There are also listings of soldiers of the War of 1812, both Seminole Wars, and the Mexican War. About 28,000 Confederate pension applications are on file, and there is an interesting collection of 1,621 questionnaires filled out shortly after 1915 by Tennessee Civil War veterans. When requesting information on veterans, give as complete a name of the veteran as you have and any other pertinent information you may have - dates of birth and death, military unit, etc. Information may be located in the Archives without all these facts, but it will be easier for the staff to find any information on a veteran if they have details. A brochure listing names of veterans and other military information available in the Archives may be had upon request to the Archives, free of charge. It is considerate, however, to include return postage in a letter requesting typed information from the Library or Archives, or, better yet, the self-addressed, stamped envelope.

All of Tennessee's land grants, including those granted by North Carolina before Tennessee attained statehood on June 1, 1796, are on file. Many warrants and certificates of survey, records which preceded the grants, are also available.

The materials in the Manuscript Section of the Division were received from many individuals and organizations. They consist of private papers and all other manuscripts not classified as official papers. They include letters, diaries, memoirs, wills and deeds, business records, church and cemetery records, school collections, art and music collections, and the papers of public officials. The Division of Archives and Manuscripts has been designated as the depository for microfilmed records of Tennessee counties. Many valuable books, manuscript collections, and miscellaneous papers belonging to the Tennessee Historical Society are deposited in and administered by the Archives Division. They are also available for the use of researchers. The Tennessee Historical Society has recently published an index, by family name, of information contained in their various collections of private papers. Request a check of this index for the name you are researching. Again, Xerox copied of any information in these collections, unless too lengthy, may be had at a cost of 15¢ a page.

Public hours of the Tennessee State Library and Archives are 8:00 A.M. to 4:30 P.M. daily. The state Library Division and the Division of Archives and Manuscripts are also open on Saturdays and state holidays. The building is closed on New Year's Day, Good Friday, Independence Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, and during the Christmas holidays. It remains closed on Saturdays when one of these holidays falls on a Friday.

A recommended publication of the Tennessee Historical Commission, housed at the Archives, is Tennessee History in Brief, which may be obtained for 10¢ from the Library. It is a booklet, not long, but gives an understanding of highlights of Tennessee history which is necessary for any researcher of Tennessee families.

Manuscripts, veterans' records, and land records will be written up more fully in a later issue of the Mid-West Tennessee Genealogical Society quarterly.

ANCESTRALLY SPEAKIN'

This letter was submitted by Mrs. Charles Bruer, great-great-grand-daughter of William Martin to whom the letter is addressed at Dresden, Tenn. It is now in her possession.

The letter was written on only one-half of a sheet of paper with the other half serving as a cover and all folded to form an envelope and sealed with wax. The upper right hand corner of the "envelope" shows the figure 10 representing the postage. In the lower left-hand corner upside down are two lines of figures with a line in between.

Waldsboro, K(y). June 28, 1842

Dear Brother & Sister

You have inclose some of the hair of our belove Child Calpurna. She is numbered with the pale nations of the Earth. On Sunday morning She was up though complain some and was a corps on Sunday night. She was sick but a short time though suffered much, her prattling and playing is still sounding in my ears though She is in Eternity.

Irena takes her death very hard. She is quite unwell from grieving though it will not bring the dead to Life. Oh my God, we are compel to give her up it appears hard. She is the third one we have had to give up and I do think that fortune frowns on us though we should not murmur. She was anxious to see her cus (cousin) though She will never lisp her name again.

We be truly happy to see you and yours with us. We are creatures of misfortune. I have no good to write. I will stop. Yours with much Respt.

I would be under many obligations to you and Artimus if you would come up and stay with Irena if it was only a week or two. I am fearful she will injure her self.
Yours.

Edward Curd

Mr. William Martin
Dresden, Tennessee
